

ARF 2018

Call for Papers

Jeju Island, Korea

October 30 -
November 1, 2018

7th Asian/Australian Rotorcraft Forum (ARF 2018): Gearing up to Compound Rotorcraft for the Future

The 7th Asian/Australian Rotorcraft Forum (ARF 2018) will be held to enhance interaction among the rotorcraft operators, industries, academia, regulators, and maintenances in the Asian and Australian regions. This conference will be organized by ARF 2018 Organizing Committee, and sponsored by the local AHS chapters of the participating countries (Korea, China, Australia, India, Singapore, and Japan) as well as the Korean Society for Aeronautical and Space Sciences.

ARF 2018 will be held on Oct. 30 through Nov. 1, in beautiful Jeju island which is designated as World Natural Heritage. The volcanic island Jeju is one of the most beloved places among tourists from not just Korea but all around the world because of its unique yet beautiful scenery, exotic lava tubes and many tourist attractions.

The conference will offer attendees an excellent opportunity to the latest advances and topics in the following areas, but not limited to: on-demand mobility, innovative rotorcraft design, compound/convertible rotorcraft, rotorcraft development history, aerodynamics, aeroacoustics, dynamics, flight dynamics and controls, smart rotor, propulsion, UAV (unmanned aerial vehicle), system integration, composites, reliability, affordability, HUMS, avionics, safe operations, and on going rotorcraft development programs.
